December 9, 2021

MCLEAN, Va., Dec. 09, 2021 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Freddie Mac (OTCQB: FMCC) today released the results of its Primary Mortgage Market Survey (PMMS), showing that the 30-year fixed-rate mortgage (FRM) averaged 3.10 percent.

"Mortgage rates have moved sideways over the last several weeks, fluctuating within a narrow range," said Sam Khater, Freddie Mac's Chief Economist. "Going forward, the path that rates take will be directly impacted by more information about the Omicron variant as it is revealed and the overall trajectory of the pandemic. In the meantime, rates remain low and stable, even as the nation faces declining housing affordability and low inventory."
